Caring for Your Cat: The Top Ten Essentials

Although your cat may act independent and be litter-trained, he still counts on you to provide him with food, water, safe shelter, regular veterinary care, companionship, and more. Take care of these ten essentials, and you'll be guaranteed to develop a rewarding relationship with your feline companion.

1. Outfit your cat with a collar and ID tag that includes your name, address, and telephone number. No matter how careful you are, there's a chance your companion may slip out the door—an ID tag greatly increases the chance that your cat will be returned home safely.
2. Follow local cat registration laws. Registering your cat according to your local council laws protects both cats and people in the community.
3. Keep your cat indoors. Keeping your cat safely confined at all times is best for you, your pet, and your community.
4. Take your cat to the veterinarian for regular check-ups. If you do not have a veterinarian, give the Animal Aid a call for information on our vet services and/or referrals to a vet clinic near you. Alternatively, ask a pet-owning friend for a referral.
5. Desex your pet. This will keep them healthier and will reduce the problem of cat over-population.
6. Give your cat a nutritionally balanced diet, including constant access to fresh water. Ask your veterinarian for advice on what and how often to feed your pet.
7. Train your cat to refrain from undesirable behaviours such as scratching furniture and jumping on countertops. Contrary to popular belief, cats can be trained with a bit of patience, effort, and understanding on your part.
8. Groom your cat often to keep their coat healthy, soft, and shiny. Although it is especially important to brush long-haired cats to prevent their hair from matting, even shorthaired felines need to be groomed to remove as much loose hair as possible. When cats groom themselves, they ingest a great deal of hair, which often leads to hairballs.
9. Set aside time to play with your cat. While cats do not need the same level of exercise that dogs do, enjoying regular play sessions with your pet will provide them with the physical exercise and mental stimulation they need, as well as strengthen the bond you share.
10. Be loyal to and patient with your cat. Make sure the expectations you have of your companion are reasonable and remember that the vast majority of behaviour problems can be solved. If you are struggling with your pet's behaviour, contact your veterinarian or Animal Aid for advice.
